ARMED SENTRY ATTACKED FROM THE BACK.

Sketch A.—Opponent approaches from the back, puts his right arm around your neck, and pulls your helmet backwards, so that it presses in your back, and the strap throttles you, with his left hand. He also kicks the bayonet out of your hand.

Sketch B.—Quickly fall on your right knee, leaning somewhat forward, and grab hold of his arm around your neck with your two hands.

Sketch C.—Twist your opponent to the right, still clutching his arm. This will make him fall on his back.

Sketch D.—Now that your opponent is on the ground, either use your bayonet, if it is handy, and finish him off, or use an arm lock.

This is done by putting your foot in his right armpit, gripping hold of his arm, palm outwards, twisting it, and pressing it rearwards across your leg.

N.B.—If opponent puts his left arm around your neck, fall on your left knee, throw him to your left, and if you apply arm lock, do so to the left arm. Then, whilst opponent is down and out, dispatch him with your bayonet (Sketch E).
